

Frontend changes not present in Production

This has come up several times, mostly relating to the Marketing site, but I've now hit this problem with the Frontend service.

Basically, deploying changes to production will not show up in production without a cache bust (locally, from a client browser, or for everyone, using How to Clear Nginx Cache). This makes sense for the Marketing site, but it makes less sense for the Frontend service particularly because even after updating the service worker, the changes were still not present.

I don't know why, I'm just noting that this happened for merging UFC-381.

To fix, just perform the How to Clear Nginx Cache cache bust and all will be well. But it's very strange that things were still cached even after updating the service worker.
