How to do a Manual Database Backup

The Postgres database is normally backed up on a daily basis using the `backend-database-backup` cronjob.

However, if a manual backup needs to be taken (because, for example, manual maintenance on the database is being performed), then it can be done as follows:

i.   Execute `kubectl create job --from=cronjob/backend-database-backup manual-database-backup`